The "Stereotype"-Mexico There must be a fault somewhere that poor Mexico is always in a revolutionary state. A political earthquake there is always spouting forth ashes or lave. The news from that country, year in and year out, is all tarred with the same stick-has a stereotype sameness, with the variations of the names of Bosses and their Apprentices.

We have said a word or two, as opportunity offered, in favor of looking after the welfare of apprentices. The Mechanics' and Manufacturers' Exchange have wisely taken hold of the subject, and a special committee of three has been appointed to look into and report what is faulty in the system of apprenticeship in cities.

We have something further to say on this important subject, and will reserve further remark until we have the views of practical men, as expressed in the report of the Com-

Revolutionary Veterans.

There are a few left of those who were companions of Washington. On to-morrow, a day of national happiness, let these veterans be remembered. The Father of his Country said, "Happy, thrice happy shall they be pronounced hereafter who have contributed anything, who have performed the meanest office in erecting this stupendous fabric of freedom." These pillars of the revolution are falling. We say with Washington-"May our country never want props to support the glorious fabric."

The Turners' Tableaux.

We appreciate and commend the classic taste of our cultured German-born citizens, who design to celebrate the evening of Washington's birth-day as indicated by the programme of the Turners. The representation of Washington crossing the Delaware will awaken our patriotism. The determined courage of Hannibal, who struck terror to the Romans in marching his army over the Alps, will remind us of the American leader's bravery and daring. His success was often like that of Hannibal's, attributed to divine interposition. So, with the other tableaux, they will speak a lesson in their graceful and classical rendering. Vocal and instrumental music will enhance the attractions of the occasion.

NIGHT DISPATCHES.

XXXVIth CONGRESS-1st SESSION WASHINGTON, February 20.

SENATE.—The bill for the relief of the widow of Captain Bearcabells, of California, widow of Captain Bearenbells, of California,

was taken up and passed.
Mr. Pugh made several adverse reports upon the application for bounty lands.
Mr. Fitch reported a resolution from the Committee on Printing for withholding the binding of Senate documents from the person with whom the contract was made, until the Committee could examine whether the con-tract with the Secretary of the Senate was made in pursuance of the law. Laid over. Mr. Rice introduced a resolution that the Committee on Postoffices and Post-roads inquire into the expedienty of a revision of the postal laws. Passed.

A joint resolution was received from the House, appropriating $10,000 for the inauguration of the statue of Washington. On motion of Mr. Hammond, it was taken

Mr. Pugh moved to strike out ten and insert three.
Mr. Hamilton thought the sum was small enough. It was the intention of the Committee to entertain the troops while here if Mr. Pagh withdrew his amendment.

The resolution was passed.

A resolution from the House on joint rules for the two houses was agreed to.

Mr. Brown's resolution was taken up.

Mr. Clark said he should speak on the fourth resolution, and called attention to the speech of Mr. Brockinridge, who said it is the aim of every good citizen to keep slavery out of Congress, where it only did harm. No Southern Senator or Representative attempted of Congress, where it only did harm. No Southern Senator or Representative attempted to legislate upon it. He read the extract not to blame the Senator introducing the resolution, but to call attention to the modern history of slavery agitation since 1850. What has been done?

In 1852 the Democrats resolved it should be kept out of Congress, but in 1854 that party commenced the agitation. In 1856 the same party resolved that there should be no more slavery agitation in Congress, but in 1857 they brought in the Lecompton Constitution. And so they agitate year after year, and resolve that they will not. In 1820 slavery was finid; they did not say slavery should go have the Territories, but that slavery was goverted by climate and geography; but now alswery goes in spite of climate and everything also. It has grown bolder, and seeks to appropriate all the territory. In the Kansas bill the doctrine was advocated that the slavery question be left to the people. If the people have the power, where do they get it? It is denied that Congress has the power, and it is also claimed that the Constitution has the power to proteot slavery. If this be true, where do the people get the power to cutride the Constitution. The resolution says they have the right to go into a Territory with slaves and be protected. The doctrine is alarming. In 1852 the Democrats resolved it should be diction from the Senator. When the Consti-tation was framed, Virginia did not recognize the doctrine that slavery ennelled both races. She did not recognize the doctrine of squatter sovereignty. Congress repealed the doctrine of free tarritory for sixty years, yet it is now claimed that the Constitution carries slavery claimed that the Constitution carries elevery into the Territories and protects it. On the ecquisition of Southern territory slavery was admitted by special provise on the supposition that the Constitution would exclude it, otherwise, except in a few cases, there was no provise, but no body claimed that the Constitution protected it.

He warned the Northern Democracy not to make the dostrine of protection of slavery an issue, or put it in their platform. If they should the history and end of the party would be short and rapid as that of Chalden. "In that night was Belshazsar, King of the Chal-

He denied that there was any power under the Constitution to take slavery into the Territory. Slaves were held by State law. When the Constitution was formed the framers of it made no provision for the carrying of slaves into other States. Since this session commenced these halls have rung with disunion. Senators were trying to excel each other. The South is said to be for slavery and disunion, and to threaten secession if slavery is not protected. He referred to remarks of the Senator from Virginia, who said the cap-stone of the arch Union was a block-stone slavery. This was not true; it was not the cap-stone, but the cobble-stone in the earth, making it tremble and shake; but it would not fall if it were taken out.

were taken out.

A message was received from the President, transmitting a memorial of the citizens of Nebraska and the northern slope of the Rocky Mountains. Referred to the Committee on Claims, in order to be printed.

A message was received from the House announcing the death of William O. Goode, of

Mr. Hunter offered the usual resolutions of espect, and moved that the Senate adjourn. He gave a sketch of the life and character of Mr. Goode. He was a man of energy and faithfulness to his State and country; consistent and true to his cause of duty, and his public and private career was such that any one might envy. He walked through his ceurse of public life without a taint or suspicion, and, like a true Christian, went peace-

Mr. Clay expressed entire concurrence in the elequent statements of the Senator from Virginia. He had sought the acquaintance of the deceased because he had come from the district where his (Clay's) mother was born and her kindred lived, and he respected him from their first introduction. He was a true gentleman who held to the right. Mr. Goode aspired to noble ends, and seorned all base means. He was always watchful at his post and faithful to his constituents, ever at the risk of his health. Adjourned.

therefore,
Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to inquire into the above-recited facts, and whether any further legislation is neces-sary to give effect to the said provision of the Coustitution, and that the committee be empowered to send for persons and papers.

Mr. Lovejoy demanded a vote on the passing of the resolution.

Objections were made. Objections were made.

Mr. Houston moved for a call of the House.

Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a bill for the support of the Indian Department in fulfilling treaty stipulations with certain Indians in Oregon and Washington Territories.

Mr. Pryor announced the death of William O. Goode, whose successor he is. He eulogized the private and political character of the deceased.

Mesers. Miles and Vallandigham eulogized the deceased.

The usual resolutions of respect were adopted. Adjourned.

Next, slavery will claim protection in the States against the will of the people; it will claim protection in the Countitution, and the time may come when the Semator from Georgia may, in his own words, call the roll of his slaves on Bunker Hill.

He was selling his wares in Merriweather, one of the western counties of the State, about sixteen miles from Greenville, the county seat. He was passing a blacksmith shop, where there was a crowd gathered, and saluted them politely, as traders generally do. But the 'non-intercourse' fever forbade them to reciprocate

With their knives they ripped open his pack, cutting his goods to pieces; they then stripped him, beat him outrageously, and left him insensible. When he returned to consciousness, he found that he was cut about the face and body, and that the thumb of his right hand was broken. He gathered together his ruined goods, and fortunately found a fearless and hospitable man who kept him ten days, when he was able to travel."

The merchant sits at his desk, and anxiously waits the news it brings—it may raise him up to the pinnacle of wealth, or it may sink him in despondency and gloom—it may soothe his aching heart, or blast his prospects forever.

DIED.

HABBISON.—Suddenly, on Sunday evening, February 19, at 9 o'clock, of congestion of the brain, in the 2 ist year of her age, Carrie W., wife of W. H., Harrison, and daughter of J. and Adeline Scards, No. 55 Ninth-street.

The funeral will take place this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from the residence of her husband, on Free-man-street, between Eighth and Minth. Friends of the family are invited to attend without further notice.

Great griefs are voiceless, and the fact that they exist only manifests itself by the bursting heart and the flight of soul. Tenfold more sad than death is the suffering that leads to it; and the struggle which the imprisoned spirit makes to be free should be to friends the only cause of pain:

Calmness, after the storm of life is o'er, and Per the meek-eyed twins, wait upon and lead the soul to verdant meads and flowery vales, where it stays in patience for the love it left behind. Thus whispers verdant meads and flowery vales, where it stays in patience for the love it left behind. Thus whispers Faith and thus the heart believes; yet are the eyes tear-blinded, and not Sympathy herself can e'er remove the weight from the wee-burdened breast.

White-winged and joyous now, she mingles with obscrube choirs, and, free from Earth's imprisonment, makes all the future brighter for those who loved har here and soon must follow whither she has led.

In the World! THE GREAT Franklin. WHILE WORKING AS A PRINTER IN London, admitted the value of good ale, yet supposed that a five-cent loaf contained as much nourishment as five cents' worth of ale.

BEN FEANKLIN was a great man, but chemlaty and phisiology have made great strides since that time, and almost all medical men, including the great chemist Liebig, admit that MUSTY ALE, being made of pure hops and mait, has properties above these even of good food. It is a gentle stimulant to the debilitated, gives tonic to the convalescent, and energy and nutrition to all.

HUME'S MUSTY ALE

Cottage, 104 Main-street. His stock consists of over five hundred barrels, of arrows ages, in very fine condition Hume's Light Musty Ale, Made especially for SPRING USE, is equal, if not superior, to that which he sold last March, and which created so great an excitement all over the Urion. It possesses all the strengthening qualities of the finest imported English and Scotch Ales, and preferred as a beverage in consequence of its parity and lightness, especially for ladies and invalids.

Mr. Hume desires to inform his friends and the public, that he has not sold a single barrel of Musty Ale to any dealer or saloon-keeper in Olncinnais, and that all are spurious except that which is sold at
